GENERAL NEWS.

Slight Favorable Change in the President's Condition.

JUSTICE CLIFFORD AT THE POINT OF DEATH.

Sitting Bull Surrenders—Wrangling Factions at Albany—Still no Election—Fatal Cave at Deadwood—Fires, Etc.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The following bulletin has been sent this morning to each cabinet officer by the president's private secretary:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 21.

The improvement in the president's condition continues to be steady and uninterrupted. His pulse this morning is ..., with normal temperature and respiration. He is bright and cheerful, has an excellent appetite and expresses desire for more substantial nourishment. There is no better indication of his progress than the disposition which he is now manifesting to think and talk of outside matters. Surgeons express themselves entirely satisfied with the progress of the case.

... A. M.—The president has had a good night, and is doing excellently this morning. Pulse 88, temperature 98.4, respiration 18.

7 P. M.—The president has had another good day. At 1 P. M. his pulse was 97, temperature 99.1, respiration 19. At 7 P. M., pulse 96, temperature 99.9, respiration 19.

11:30 P. M.—The slight change which has taken place in the president's condition since the last official bulletin has been in the direction of further improvement. He has passed a comfortable day and took a little solid food again this afternoon in the shape of boiled chicken, and gained in strength. The afternoon fever has subsided, and at this hour the president is quietly sleeping.

To the Consulting Physicians.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The following telegram was sent by attending surgeons to consulting surgeons to-night:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 5 P. M.—Since our telegram of yesterday the president has continued doing well. He passed a comfortable night. This morning a mass of clotted, about one-quarter of an inch square came away spontaneously with the pus from the deeper part of the wound. It proved on examination to consist chiefly of cotton fibres, with a few woolen fibres adhering. Medication continued without change. At 8:30 A. M. his pulse was 98, temperature 98.4, respiration 19. At 1 P. M. pulse 97, temperature 99.1, respiration 19. At 7 P. M. pulse 94, temperature 99.9, respiration 19.

A Very Hopeful View.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The president's wound is granulating and is in a healthy process of healing. The fever has reached its lowest point and we are happy. Think in a few weeks he will be able to take a sea voyage. One hundred and fifty men are fitting the Tallapoosa to take the president when he is well enough. It is expected the president and family will be able to go on the 15th of August. A swinging bunk is being provided for the president.

A "Deal" in Stock.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Central Arizona was forced down to 2¼, with very heavy transactions. The manipulation of this stock is exciting much adverse comment. The Stock Reporter, a mining journal, has the following: "We wish to ask the officers of Central Arizona a few pertinent questions. Perhaps they will consider them impertinent. Is it or is it not a fact that you are now making arrangements to list your stock on the London stock exchange? and that you are wrecking the market for the purpose of shaking out holders of stock that you may mark prices up without having to buy much stock? and that you will have a high price in New York to make your London deal on? We will be glad to publish your reply."

Edison's Enterprise.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Edison is still pushing on his preparations for lighting the district bounded by Spruce and Wall streets and Nassau and East river. Wires have been put in nearly five hundred houses, and the district will probably be lighted by October 1st. The work is all completed with the exception of the erection of heavy engines in a central station. The contract made with subscribers is that the light shall cost the same amount as gas. The lighting of the district, Mr. Edison thinks, will reduce the cost of gas to $1 per 1000 cubic feet.

Railroad Statistics.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The Post says: The total number of miles of railroads in the United States in operation at the close of 1880 was 93,[illegible] miles—an increase for the year of 7174 miles, against 4771 miles for the previous year, and 2687 miles in 1878. Gross earnings of railroads for 1880 were $615,401,[illegible], against $529,012,999 in 1879, and net earnings $256,191,[illegible] against $219,[illegible] in 1879. The dividends paid aggregated $77,115,411, against $61,681,470 in 1879. [illegible]

The net earnings were $18,[illegible] against $14,[illegible] for 1879. The dividends paid amounted to $3,[illegible] against $2,311,770 for 1879. During the year various consolidations of railroads were made in the southern states, in consequence of which earnings to an amount not less than $2,000,000 were reported in addition to the very large amount of earnings by companies whose officers refused information. Total earnings of all railroads, 16,000 miles, of southern states, equalled probably $52,000,000. Gross earnings of railroads of western states $200,[illegible] against $23[illegible] for 1879. Net earnings, $125,166,[illegible] against $[illegible] for 1879. Dividends paid amounted to $33,117,[illegible] against $23,561,[illegible] for 1879. Earnings for freight, mails, etc., $226,491,[illegible], and from passengers $64,093,098. Included in the statement of earnings of railroads of the western states is that of the Union Pacific.

Money and Stocks.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Silver bars, 111¼; money easy, 2½; governments irregular; stocks closed strong; Western Union, 90¾; Quicksilver, 13; Pacific 49¼; Mariposa, 2½; Wells Fargo, 124; New York Central, 143½; Erie, 43⅝; Panama, 260; Union Pacific, 127⅞; bonds offered, 118; Central Pacific, 94; Silver Nugget, 22; Mineral Creek, 53.

The Passenger War.

Passenger rates to the west remain as yesterday. The proposed meeting of general passenger agents did not take place owing to the refusal of Meeker of the N. Y. Central, to attend.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The Erie railway has reduced immigrant rates to accord with the reductions of first-class rates, on a basis of $9 to Chicago and $11.25 to St. Louis.

Consolidation of Railway Lines.

HARRISBURG, July 21.—The lines between New York and Chicago known as the New York, Pittsburg and Chicago railway of Ohio and Penn, now being constructed, were consolidated today and form a continuous line under the title of New York, Pittsburg & Chicago Railway Co. Stock $[illegible]. Jas. S. Negley president, Jas. S. Negley, Jr. secretary.

Waiting the Governor's Signature.

ALBANY, July 21.—It is believed that the election will be deferred until the governor has signed the bill in relation to the manner of holding special elections, which will probably be transmitted with his approval the present week.

Murder in New Mexico.

LAS VEGAS, July 21.—Gazette's Albuquerque special this afternoon: Frank McPherson shot and killed a Mexican named [illegible] and another, name unknown, cause, quarrel over a tie contract. The murderer escaped.

SILVER CITY, July 21.—Monday night S. Harvey, a ... hotel, kicked a Chinese dishwasher. The latter complained to a deputy marshal, who immediately went to the hotel to arrest Harvey, who asked to see his papers. The marshal instantly ordered him to follow him, and Harvey not heeding, was shot dead.

Popular Indignation in Texas.

COLUMBUS, July 21.—Ministers and citizens of Texas send Governor Foster assurances of their disapproval of Governor Roberts' refusal to proclaim a day of thanksgiving for the president's recovery.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican at Waco, Texas, says: Inconceivable indignation is felt at the governor's refusal to cooperate in naming a thanksgiving day because of Garfield's recovery. Democrats and republicans alike condemn it as indecent and insulting to the patriotism of Texas. The mayor of this city will issue a proclamation tomorrow. Other cities will confer with him in arranging the day.

Died From his Wounds.

NEW YORK, July 20.—George T. Coles, shot last night by Mrs Coleman, died to-night at Chambers street hospital.

Cotton Mills Burned.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Two of the Pequot cotton mills buildings owned by Wm. Wood & son burned last night. Loss $100,000. Insured.

Temperance Laws.

JACKSON, Miss., July 21.—The state prohibition convention for the purpose of getting the legislature to pass prohibitory laws is in session.

The Temperance Question as Viewed by Governor Foster.

CINCINNATI, July 21.—In the temperance convention yesterday letters were read from Governor Foster and Attorney-General Nash in answer to inquiries. Foster denied that he had opposed the temperance movement but believed under the present constitution that local option as to license and taxation of liquor selling were unconstitutional. The best thing to do would seem to be to refer the whole question to the people as the republican platform advised. Nash wrote similarly.

Fleeing the Blame.

CINCINNATI, July 21.—The coroner's inquest on the bodies of ... at the fire at Marquas manufactory censures ... for permitting an overcrowded building without sufficient means of escape in case of fire.

This is Aimed at Roscoe Conkling.

[New York Tribune.]

Mr. Jefferson Davis expressed his sympathy with the president on the third day after the attempted assassination. He did not wait five days, and what he said, though little, was said with feeling.

THE NEW YORK CONTEST.

The Canal Ballot.

ALBANY, July 21.—Joint convention ballot: Lapham 65, Potter 15, Conkling 18, Woodford 1. Senator Forster voted for Lapham instead of Jacobs. Necessary to a choice 71. Adjourned.

The Albany Political Pot.

ALBANY, July 21.—There is more activity at the hotels to-night than for several weeks. The canvass and stalwarts are apparently greatly excited. The stalwarts are denouncing a caucus, intimating that they will even vote for the nomination of Lapham. The half breeds stand firm against caucus. They say that to hold a caucus now will be to admit that they are responsible for the existence of the deadlock from the first and intimate that it is only to put them in that position. The stalwarts are clamoring for caucus. The stalwarts, they say, will claim that if a caucus was held at the commencement of the contest an election would have taken place the next day. The democrats are also considerably exercised. They know that they can break the deadlock by simply remaining away and allowing the election of Lapham, but fear to do this as they will render themselves liable to the charge of having been bribed. Some think that they are now being made tools by the stalwarts. They say that the stalwarts, while ostensibly demanding a caucus, base their holding out on that ground. The real object is to prevent Robertson from taking the New York collectorship. They say that to accomplish this the stalwarts will stand out till the end of December next. The democrats are seriously considering whether they should not end the deadlock in the way stated above, and appeal to the people to sustain them and at the same time relieve them from any corrupt suspicion.

Conkling's Programme.

NEW YORK, July 21.—As soon as the Albany contest is decided, it is understood that Conkling will take a trip across the Atlantic, with a view to rest and recuperation, and on his return in October will make a journey through the southern states, including in his programme the cotton international exposition at Atlanta, Georgia. He hopes, it is said, by this about strengthening his position at the south in that section, and to that end he will take the earliest opportunity to remove the unfavorable impression his stalwart speeches during last year, and especially during the presidential campaign, are supposed to have made on the southern mind. The ex-senator is said to have not abandoned expectations of one day being the president of the United States, and it he has weakened his position at this end of the union he would seem to consider it sound policy to do what he can to strengthen himself elsewhere. It will be his aim to demonstrate to the southern mind that the stalwart policy meant restoration of southern prosperity and southern influence within the legitimate meaning of those terms, and that people who have been representing him as hostile to either were animated either by malice or personal hostility.

The Canal Resolution.

ALBANY, July 21.—The senate reconsidered the vote by which the resolution making canals free were lost, and finally passed them.

GRANT'S MEXICAN COMPANY.

The Much-Talked-of Scheme of the ex-President and his Gold Bug Friends.

ALBANY, July 21.—Articles of association of the Mexican Oriental International railroad have been received by the secretary of state and laid before the governor for approval. The articles state that on the 6th of June, 1881, a contract was entered into between Mexico and the International Improvement Company, granting certain rights and powers and a subsidy to aid in the construction and operation of railroads and telegraph branches within the republic of Mexico. The contract provides that said rights and powers should be transferred to one or more companies which might be organized for that purpose. The International Railway Improvement company does not contemplate maintenance and operation of railroads and telegraph built, only construction of the same for other companies or individuals, the state of New York having expressly authorized the incorporation of companies for maintenance of roads and telegraph beyond the limits of the United States.

J. Gould, Russell Sage, Sydney Dillon, Dr. Norvin Green, John P. Dillon, Thos. F. Eckert, M. Romero of New York, U. S. Grant, Greenville and Francis Dedrasse of Mexico, with others, have formed the above named company.

The road is to commence at a point on the Rio Grande, between Laredo and Reynosa, continuing south between Eldeg west and 7 east of meridian of Mexico, touching at San Fernando and Santander Jiminez, with a branch road to Ciudad Victoria, to be extended as far as San Luis Potosi, also branches to Matamoros and the Bar of Jesus Maria. In case this port should be open to coasting and foreign traffic, the trunk line shall continue from Santander, Jiminez, to the City of Mexico, by the most convenient ascent to the table lands, and may continue from there to a point on the Pacific coast. The main line may diverge or branch off to ... its connection ... passing by ... with ... its terminus in Vera Cruz, with branches to Morelos, Tampico, Tuxpan and ... The capital stock is placed at $25,000,000, divided into 250,000 shares of $100 each. The above named persons are to act as a board of directors. Jay Gould takes 500 shares, Sydney Dillon 100, Russell Sage 100, Thomas F. Dillon 300, Amos F. Hoskins 100, Thomas T. Eckert 100, Norvin Green 100, Thos. W. Pearsall 100, U. S. Grant 100 and Francis Dedrasse 100.

SITTING BULL SURRENDERS.

He Rides into Fort Buford Sullen, Silent, Fatigued and Hungry.

ST. PAUL, July 20.—The Pioneer Press has the following special from Fort Buford: 1 P. M.: Sitting Bull and about 200 of his people arrived at exactly twelve to-day and surrendered, their arms and ponies to Major Brotherton. No speeches have yet been made, as Sitting Bull and his braves are fatigued and hungry. They were placed in companies between the post and the boat landing and are as securely in Major Brotherton's power as if in irons. A correspondent visited Sitting Bull after his lodge was erected and cheered the old man by informing him that he had seen his lost daughter, whom the Canadians had told him was in chains, only a short time before and that she was well and happy. He expressed a desire to talk after he had rested and eaten.

The cavalcade as it filed into the garrison attracted much attention. It consisted of six army wagons loaded with squaws and children, followed by 30 or 40 of Louis Legard's Red river carts well filled with baggage. Sitting Bull himself and his chief and head men rode their ponies and did not dismount and shake hands till they arrived at the place fixed upon for their camp. Sitting Bull seemed more sullen and silent than any of the chiefs he has under his management. It is thought that kind treatment will soon pacify him. The government are glad his surrender in good faith.

The dispatch forwarded to Standing Rock informed Crow King and Low Dog of Sitting Bull's arrival, and it is believed that this news will remove any fears the Indians there may have to leave the agency.

ACCIDENTS.

Railroad Disaster.

WHITEHALL, N. Y., July 21.—A night express from New York over the Delaware and Hudson Canal Co.'s railroad struck a rock near Dresden and a portion of the train plunged into the lake. Engineer Charles Caswell was instantly killed and the fireman was injured, no passengers hurt.

Mining Accident at Deadwood.

DEADWOOD, July 21.—The ore cut of the Caledonia mine at Terraville caved in last night, burying seven miners. Wm. Gile, Daniel Cameron and Andrew Larsen were taken out alive. John Costello, James Roach, Pat Hawkins and L. C. Hamilton are supposed to be killed. Roach is known to be dead though his body has not yet been found.

Another Accident.

L. S. Goodman, foreman of De Smet mine, was instantly killed by the arch on which he was standing, near the shaft giving away, precipitating him 200 feet.

Yacht Disaster.

BOSTON, July 21.—A yacht containing six young men belonging to South Boston capsized in Squantum gut last evening and all were drowned. The bodies were recovered and taken to South Boston this morning.

THE TURF.

Races at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, July 21.—Saratoga cup, 2¼ miles: Checkmate first, Monitor second, Irish King third, time, 4:00½.

The Chicago Races.

CHICAGO, July 20.—No races to-day. The track is very heavy. There are prospects of rain to-morrow. It is certain that the St. Julian and Sorrel Dan race will not be run to-morrow and it is rumored that it is off altogether. No pools on that race have been sold here yet.

Jimmie and the White House.

[From the New York Herald.]

When I called last night I found Jimmie Garfield at work at the secretary's desk. He was writing in a note book, and to my question, "Have you taken upon your shoulders the affairs of state?" replied no, but he had done the next hardest thing. He had started a diary. "I don't intend to keep it long," he explained, "only till father gets so as I can read it to him. You see he don't know what's going on. The doctors won't tell him anything, nor allow Col. Rockwell nor Gen. Swaim to do so." He drew his chair over to the side of mine and came under the influence of my big palmleaf fan as he continued with boyish frankness, "I tell you none of my chums will ever aspire to be president. I don't like Washington now. Mother has been sick ever since we came to the beastly place, and now father is shot, and everything is all very nice for a few days, but it's like other things—it don't pay. Mollie, my sister, can't get along at all. She's gone to stay at Col. Rockwell's house, where she has a chum, Col. Rockwell's daughter, and only Harry and I are left in the gloomy place." And after a pause, "I'd better get this place ... which I write ... for the newspapers ... my diary, anyway."

The Present System Full of Dangers.

[Philadelphia Sunday Transcript.]

As long as the present system of securing appointments is continued to operate ... and the ... request be borne by the heads of the departments, congressmen will have their attention diverted from more important matters and the lives of honored persons who have refused to listen to the demands ... may be sacrificed.

Conkling as a Blunderer.

[Springfield Republican.]

Roscoe Conkling has lost his head. He blundered in his interviews about the president's probable death, which he devoted to Arthur's praise. He blunders again in his letter about the punishment of Guiteau. Conkling acts like a man who is found out and who knows it. His self-consciousness betrays him, and, when his one need is silence, he talks to say the wrong thing.

Meteoric Stones.

[Tinsley's Magazine.]

The most famous meteoric stone mentioned in the ancient records is that which fell near Ægos Potamos, in Thrace, about the year in which Socrates was born. It is described by Plutarch in the life of Lysander, and also by the elder Pliny (Book II.), who says that it was to be seen in his time, that is, about 500 years afterward, that it was of a burned color, and that its fall was accompanied by a meteor. It has been described as of the size of two mill stones, and equal in weight to a full wagon-load. This stone is mentioned in the chronicle of the Parian Marbles. Livy states that a shower of stones fell on the Alban Mount, not far distant from Rome, in the reign of Tullus Hostilius (about 644 B. C.), but, as Humboldt has pointed out, the historian probably refers to pumice ejected from that mountain, which was a volcano, and not wholly extinguished at the time. At Pessinus, in Galatia, the mother of the gods was worshiped under the form of a stone which was said to have fallen from heaven. In consequence of a treaty with Attalus, King of Pergamus, the stone was solemnly brought to Rome by Publius Scipio Nasica, about 204 B. C., and placed in the Temple of Cybele.

It is Proper to Say It.

[New York Tribune.]

It is proper at this time, and at all times, to say that the republican party of the state and of the nation, have no further use for Mr. Roscoe Conkling, and if his sense of propriety bore any proportion to his self conceit, he would recognize this fact and cease his clamorous calls upon a public which is tired of him, and upon a legislature which a few of his creatures hold fast in a shameful and wearisome contest. To come forward at a time like this and accuse the people who have been defending the president against his assassins of libeling, is an exhibition of folly and arrogance remarkable even in him.

The late Rev. George Gilfillan, of Dundee, worked hard to gain a literary reputation, and left much in his study drawer which his family have thought they ought to give to the light. His friend, Mr. Frank H. Henderson, member of Parliament, has brought these together under the title of "Sketches—Literary and Theological," and Mr. David Douglas, of Edinburg, has brought them out in a better shape than they deserve. The papers are chiefly fragments of a larger work, which he did not live to complete.

It may leave the system again, and we may never expect its return, unless, indeed, having passed through the circuit of other suns, after myriads of years, it reappears in an orbit entirely different from its former one, so as to afford no evidence through which it may be recognized. But if it moves in an ellipse, and does not leave our system, it will return in a ... changed orbit, through which it may be detected." Properly Rebuked.

[Springfield (Mass.) Republican.]

A scandalous story affecting the private character of a prominent ... of the state was reported on the streets here and in Albany yesterday, and full particulars were telegraphed to this paper, which we declined to print. We try to know news when we see it, but we have our own views as to the propriety of using scandal as a political weapon. Our disagreement with this gentleman is exclusively on public grounds ... are to be made upon his private ... we prefer that they should appear in some other paper than the Tribune.—New York Tribune.

There is only one conclusion to be drawn logically from this statement, and that is that a man's reputation for chastity has no proper bearing on his fitness to represent the state of New York in the United States senate. The republican dissents totally and decidedly from any such doctrine in morals or in journalism. The Tribune's difference with Mr. Platt may be "exclusively on public grounds," so much the worse for the Tribune. We recognize no obligation to cover up and suppress the open and shameless commission of adultery by a man who asks to be sent to the highest law-making body in this country. If metropolitan journals pursue this course for the next generation, there will scarcely be a chaste man in public life from the state of New York. Why a man's sexual crime should be tolerated, while the clear theft of $5 would condemn him, is a distinction in morals which we cannot understand. Is a sparrow of greater value than man or woman?

The Mississippi Route.

[From the St. Paul Pioneer Press.]

The Mississippi river, aroused from its long slumber and shaking off its lethargy, suddenly enters the arena in which the Titanic forces of modern commerce are struggling for ascendency in the northwest, as a competitor more powerful than all its railroad rivals. The fact that wheat can be shipped to Liverpool by the way of New Orleans at a much less cost than the ordinary rates of transporting it to New York is a factor of prime commercial significance. It is destined to revolutionize the grain trade of the west. For this new transportation route cannot be owned or controlled by any corporation. It is nature's ... the people's ... to the sea, and is free to all who choose to float their boats upon its current. Even in the infancy of the development of the barge system the diversion of the grain traffic to ... is so great that the trunk lines have already been forced to reduce their rates on grain to figures which it is said do not pay the actual cost of transportation.

Some Gunshot Wounds.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

Gen. Henry A. Barnum suffers to this day from a gunshot wound not unlike that of the president received nineteen years ago at the battle of Antietam. He was shot entirely through the right side of the body, and so desperate was his condition that he could not be removed from the field, the physicians declaring that an attempt to remove him would be fatal. But he recovered after a few weeks' treatment in a field hospital, and is to-day well and hearty. His great annoyance is that he is compelled to wear a seton to keep the wound open, and the careful washing of the wound is a part of his daily toilet. In his case, however, the liver was probably not lacerated. The late Gen. Lovell H. Rousseau, of Kentucky, was shot in 1856 by Dr. Standiford, for some time president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. The ball entered the abdomen just below the navel and lodged in the back. It was never removed. He was in a dangerous condition for several weeks after, but finally recovered, and lived until 1869, dying suddenly while apparently in the best of health from what his physicians at New Orleans called "knotted bowels."

At Peterhoff also died Alexandra, the eldest daughter of the late czar, around whose fate some mystery is said to hang. Every night the spirits of the two princesses are said to walk and sometimes they weep. The weeping of the ghostly visitants, like the wailing of the banshee, is said to be the sure prognostic of coming death. On the evening of the fatal Sunday when the czar was slain more than twenty persons declared they saw the princesses weeping.

OUR EXPORTS.

It is certainly gratifying to all true Americans to know that of late years our exports have largely exceeded our imports, not alone in such staple articles as wheat and beef, but in almost every branch of industry. Ten years ago nearly all the perfumery and toilet articles used in this country were imported from Europe; to-day we not only manufacture for ourselves, but are large exporters to South America, China, Japan and the Colonies. The immense growth of this particular industry on the Pacific Coast is simply astonishing. FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 22, 1881.

ORIGIN OF THE NATIONAL BANKING SYSTEM.

Soon after the outbreak of the great rebellion, when the government was forced to devise and employ new expedients to carry on its financial operations, John Thompson and Silas M. Stillwell of New York, both connected with the free banking system of that state, conceived the idea of a national banking act. With much pains they elaborated the details of a system and explained their scheme to Secretary Chase and to leading members of congress. It took a good deal of time and labor to secure for it favorable attention; but at length President Lincoln and Secretary Chase recommended the measure. A bill to provide for the organization of national banking associations was printed in January, 1862; but so great was the opposition to it in congress that the bill did not get beyond the committee of ways and means at that session. It seemed almost a hopeless task to enlighten congress on the subject. Mr. Conkling, then a member of the house, opposed it, asking whether it was expedient to make war on the twelve hundred state banks of the country, and whether it was right even if it was expedient. In lieu of the measure he proposed to issue $250,000,000 of 7 per cent bonds, payable in thirty-one years, to be exchanged for the bills of the suspended banks of New York, Boston and Philadelphia, and $200,000,000 of United States notes payable in coin in one year. How the coin was to be obtained he did not explain. Senator Collamer of Vermont declared that the people would not break up their system of banking, interwoven as it was with all their transactions, to establish national banks; nor would they buy United States bonds for the purpose. Many other prominent men in both branches of congress spoke against the proposition. Nevertheless, after much hindrance and long delay, the bill was perfected and passed. Immediately upon its becoming a law, John Thompson and his two sons, together with three other individuals, organized the first national bank of New York City. About the time it was ready to go into business, the clearing house passed a resolution that any national bank would not be recognized. The superintendent of the banking department at Albany notified the officers of the first national that it was his duty, under the laws of New York, to enjoin the bank from doing any business. Secretary Chase secured the services of David Dudley Field to defend the bank against any legal proceedings that might be started by the state banking department. The city banks were hostile to the new institution, which was also refused admittance to the clearing house, the banks also refusing to exchange with it, and for a time going so far as to refuse national bank notes. The government made the bank a public depository and agent to dispose of United States bonds for the account of the government. In this way it came into receipt of government money to the amount of several million dollars, which gave to the first national a moneyed power over the other banks, so that in two years' time it was invited to join the clearing house association. When other national banks were organized with large capital, the old state banks gave up the fight, and after ceasing their hostility to the national banking system organized as national banks, and from that time the new system was a grand success.

From the first, the effect of the national banking act upon the public credit was apparent. Within a week after its passage the bonds of the United States, for which a new market had thus been created, advanced from 93 to par in currency. The sale of 5-20 bonds proceeded so rapidly that within two weeks after the adjournment of congress the whole mass of suspended requisitions had been paid, all current demands had been promptly met, and full provision had been made for the payment of the army and navy. This was early in 1863. During the remainder of the year no serious difficulty was found in providing for the enormous expenditures of the government. The treasury report in the following December declared that the bank act had "at once inspired faith in the securities of the government, and more than any other one cause, enabled the secretary to provide for the prompt payment of the soldiers and the public creditors."

The national bank issues, soon superseding the issues of the state banks, gave the country a bank currency free from fluctuation and readily accepted in every part of the United States. In this respect the advantage to the people was very great. Under the old state system the bills of the banks of one state would seldom circulate, without heavy discounts, in another. There was no end to the resulting inconvenience and loss. A man who had his pockets filled with state bank bills could seldom tell how much money he had. Many objections have been made to the national banking system, but the people have regarded the advantage of possessing a bank currency of uniform value all over the country as a defense to all attacks upon the system.

Probably no other one thing has done so much to augment the money power of Wall street as the national banking act. The banks in other cities than New York, when the act first became a law, were permitted to keep one-half their lawful money reserve in cash deposits in the city of New York. As all the banks are required to keep a large percentage of their deposits as a reserve—the banks of the leading cities 25 per cent., and those of other cities 15 per cent.—this gave control of vast sums to the New York banks. The comptroller of the currency, in his report for 1880, states that $100,000,000 of the funds of other banks are constantly on deposit in New York subject to demand. This is in itself a tremendous power, and when the national banking system was first started it gave to the pioneer associations in the metropolis immense advantage over the older state institutions. The resources of the national banks now exceed two thousand millions of dollars. These banks contain deposits to the amount of one thousand millions. Even this brief and imperfect outline will give some idea of the heavy contribution of the national banks to the immense resources from which Wall street draws its power.

John Thompson, who organized the first national bank of New York, is still living, though he is not now in active business. He and his sons are millionaires. The bank they established has made enormous sums of money, chiefly through stupendous transactions in government bonds. It is said that from 1877 to 1881 it has paid in dividends no less than 210 per cent. on its entire capital.

AS TO "PUBLIC OPINION."

Why will not public opinion enforce a prohibitory liquor law? This is a question that seems to puzzle many. The Pacific Christian Advocate says: "It has seemed to us with our limited acquaintance with the spirit and practice of American citizenship, that 'public opinion' is the opinion of the majority of the public. It is on this basis that we elect legislators, governors, presidents; that legislators pass laws and governors and presidents approve them. There has never been an election in this country that would not have been ignored or disregarded because it did not agree with the interests, wishes, feelings and wants of a large part of the community, if the logic of THE OREGONIAN is conclusive." The error here is in forcing an analogy, and the result is confusion of ideas. That elections shall be decided by a majority of the suffrages is a settled principle of our government. Refusal to abide the result of an election, and resistance thereto, is rebellion; and rebellion against a government is a more serious matter than selling or drinking a glass of intoxicating liquor. So, although a majority of voters shall declare for a prohibitory law, yet such law may be violated without convulsing society. Such law, indeed, is often violated secretly; and no public opinion that we ever heard of regards the offense as a heinous crime. This is the reason why a statute against intoxicating liquors can not be enforced so readily as a statute against theft, arson, or murder. Already we have more prohibition in our statutes than is enforced, or can be enforced. THE OREGONIAN does not object to more, or rather it would not object, were it not that the only result would be to bring the law into further contempt.

The editor of the Advocate discusses the subject, as his custom is, in a fair and judicious spirit. But he has a correspondent whose impulses, uncontrolled by reflection or judgment, run into the supercilious, pharisaical and canting style so common with those who "let drive" at the subject without thinking upon it. But that is not strange, as such a writer is unable to consider at once the many points of a complex problem. He says: "If the legislature of our state will authorize the people to decide by vote whether the several counties will have 'license' or 'no license,' I am well satisfied that this county would vote 'no license'." No one whose judgment is of the slightest value would make an assertion of this kind. It would be easy to outvote the liquor sellers. They are not very numerous. But when they are backed not only by the drinkers but by the great influence of property owners, large numbers of whom, though temperate and respectable citizens, are directly or indirectly interested in the liquor trade, there is a total force which would beat "no license" in this county by three to one. The error of all statements like the above grows out of the assumption that the sellers are the only persons who sustain the traffic, or who would vote to continue it. Of course we expect from one who reasons as this shallow writer does the intimation that THE OREGONIAN is controlled by the liquor sellers. No journal can talk sense on any subject, or show the fallacy of narrow opinions, without meeting a similar innuendo. It is the first and last resource of a small, mean and corrupt mind.

In the early part of next month an international medical congress will be held in London, at which a number of prominent American physicians will be present. This is the seventh congress of the kind. It has for patrons the queen and the prince of Wales; for president, Sir James Paget, and for other officers some of the most eminent physicians and surgeons in England. So far as appears from the printed rules, membership is not confined to a single school of medicine, but is opened to "medical men legally qualified to practice in their respective countries." The congress will be divided into fifteen sections, before each of which papers are to be read, on subjects especially assigned to them, and certain questions already prepared are to be discussed. Each section is in itself a complete society, with a distinguished staff of officers. All the papers read and the discussions thereon are to be published in a report of the transactions, and are sure to form a valuable record of the medical progress and thought of the day.

Boston claims to have supplied thus far most of the capital for western development. It projected and built the first transcontinental railroad in this country, the Union Pacific, and a goodly part of its $200,000,000 worth of property still represents Boston ownership. Boston also projected and built the second transcontinental line via the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, and this company, by the way, represents $80,000,000 of property, almost entirely of Boston ownership. The third transcontinental line will be the Atlantic and Pacific, a Boston project started fifteen years ago. Upon this $10,000,000 will be spent this year, and more than half of this is Boston investment.

The American consul at Aix-la-Chapelle estimates that 200,000 emigrants will leave Germany for the United States during the present year. Political economists estimate the value of immigrants at $1000 each. At this rate Germany will contribute $200,000,000 to the wealth of this country through the skill and muscle of her immigrants, besides which it is probable they will bring an average of $70 each, or an aggregate of $14,000,000 in money.

OREGONIAN AT THE RESORTS.—Parties can have THE DAILY OREGONIAN sent to them at any of the seaside resorts, at $1 per month, by leaving their address at the business office of this paper.

OREGONIAN AT ASTORIA.—Extra copies of the DAILY at [illegible], for the accommodation of visitors.

CITY.

[illegible] THE WATER SUPPLY.—So rapid has been the growth of Portland that the water supply has been found inadequate to meet the constantly increasing demand. To meet this requirement the Portland Water company are now preparing plans and specifications for largely extending the capacity of their works in the way of machinery and mains. They will this summer and fall build a reservoir at the south end of Eighth street, at an elevation of [illegible] feet above the Sixth street reservoir, or 260 feet above the base of grades. From this proposed reservoir they will be enabled to supply with good pressure all that portion of the city west of Sixth street, south of Mill street, west of Eighth street and south of Alder, to the western city limits. The company have now on the way and to arrive during the winter, between 400 and 500 tons of water and gas mains. The new reservoir will hold from [illegible] to [illegible] gallons. A contract has been made for the pumping machinery for forcing the water from the Sixth street reservoir to the proposed reservoir at the head of Eighth street on the slope of Robinson's hill.

WALLA WALLA BAND AT THE FAIR.—A correspondent who has resided for many years in California, but who now is a resident of Portland, writes as follows concerning the First Cavalry Band of Walla Walla, that has been engaged by the board of managers of the Portland Mechanics' Association to furnish music during the coming fair: "I am glad that the managers have recognized the ability of this band. I knew Prof. Walker and many of his men in California, and I bespeak for the citizens of Portland a great musical treat. The managers of the fair have shown a wise thing in engaging this band, as it will more than pay for the expense incurred, by the increased receipts. Such excellent music as they will make, is a sure guarantee of large crowds gathering daily, expressly to hear the band play. Having had many years' experience in California I know what I speak. I congratulate the managers and the people on the coming event. The elite and fashion will surely be at the fair this year. Prof. Walker is one of the finest of our coast musicians, as well as a gentleman of the finer feelings—one that Portlanders will long remember."

NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH.—Work on the new Catholic church in East Portland has been commenced by the contractor, Mr. DeBurgh. The edifice will occupy the lot on the northeast corner of J and 11th streets, facing south. The contract does not include the furnishing of the interior with altar, pews, etc., and the total cost, with everything complete, will not fall far short of $8000. The main building will be [illegible] feet, and will have a steeple 100 feet in height, the tower of which will be 50 feet high. The vestibule will be 10 by 16 feet, with front and side entrance and doors opening outward. All the doors and windows will be of gothic architecture, and between the latter will be buttresses running to the height of the main wall. The roof will be partially gothic and shingled. There will also be a large gallery of gothic style and finely finished. Altogether, it will undoubtedly be one of the most handsome churches in the northwest, and at the same time so substantial that a repetition of the disaster by which the old church fell will be next to an impossibility.

ORDERED TO NEW YORK.—On reliable information it is learned that a dispatch has been received here from the department at Washington ordering Col. G. L. Gillespie, major, United States engineers, to report at New York. It is further stated that Col. Gillespie will be assigned to duty at New York. The death of Col. N. Michler (announced a few days since by the dispatches), has caused a vacancy which will be filled by Col. Gillespie. For several days past this officer has been over on the Sound, and the dispatch notifying him of his assignment, was forwarded to him. Capt. Charles F. Powell, now in charge of the government locks at the Cascades, will be temporarily assigned to the position vacated by Col. Gillespie.

"PASSION TO RULE."—Dr. A. P. Truesdell, the well known lecturer and author, lectured at Y. M. C. A. hall last evening to a large audience. His subject was "Passion to Rule." This evening Dr. Truesdell will lecture on the subject of "Magnetism and Mind Reading as a Science." The lecturer will give exhibitions of the mind over matter. He claims to be able by controlling the thoughts and directing the actions of others to paralyze the healthy and restore the paralytic, to relieve pain, heal the sick, cure the deaf, blind, impotent and insane through his own magnetic will power. He invites all persons so afflicted to come to the lecture.

A BEAR FIGHT.—A Vancouver exchange says: "A few days ago, while Hughey Glenn, of Lewis river, was rambling in the woods near his place, and while standing on a log resting, a brown bear suddenly appeared in the path in front of him. Hughey raised his yager and sent the contents of it at Mr. Bear, which so enraged his bearship that he lunged forward, lighting on the log beside his assailant. This was getting warm, but Hughey, nothing daunted, clubbed his gun and began punching him in good earnest, and succeeded in making it so unpleasant that bruin took to his heels, leaving Mr. Glenn in possession of the field."

FISHERMAN DROWNED.—The [illegible] of Thursday says: "The boat picked up by Andrew Schuring yesterday belonged to Mr. William Lewis, who was fishing for William Hume's Astoria cannery. Mr. Schuring picked it up on Saturday afternoon outside, and it was identified yesterday by Mr. L. D. Currie, bookkeeper at William Hume's, and to make assurance doubly sure, Mr. Schuring had a book which he found in the boat, which proves to have been Mr. Lewis' account with the cannery. Mr. Lewis leaves a family in this county. He was assisted by Mr. V. F. Finley, and both were splendid men."

DISTRICT NO. 46.—Mr. D. M. C. Gault, principal of the public school in Holladay's addition, in District No. 46, has furnished the following notes from his annual report: Whole number of days taught, 200; whole number of days attendance, 18,809; whole number days absence, 2472; whole number of pupils enrolled, 165; average daily attendance, 94. It has been found necessary to enlarge the school building in order to accommodate the increasing population of the district, and the addition to the school house now being built will, it is hoped, be ready for use by the commencement of the fall term.

HELD TO ANSWER.—James McMahon, who was arrested a few days ago on the charge of being an accomplice of the notorious burglar Rice, has been held to await the action of the grand jury by Justice H. W. Davis, before whom he was examined. His bonds were fixed at $500, and in default he was committed to the county jail. There seems to be no doubt as to his guilt.

TO BE ORGANIZED.—The charter for the new post of the Grand Army of the Republic has arrived and the charter members will be mustered in next Saturday night. Capt. N. S. Pierce, post commander of George Wright Post No. 1, has been detailed as mustering officer. The post will be No. 22, and attached to the department of California at present.

FOR THE SEASIDE.—The steamer Lurline will leave her wharf at the foot of Alder street to-morrow, Saturday, morning at 7:30 o'clock for Astoria, connecting with the Gen. Canby for the seaside and Young's river. Returning, the Lurline will leave Astoria 6:30 Monday morning.

THE "BOSS" SALMON.—At William Hume's cannery at Eagle Cliff, William Arnold captured Wednesday morning the largest salmon ever known to be caught in the Columbia river. It weighed 84 pounds, and when dressed filled 69 cans.

SLIGHT ACCIDENT.—Yesterday the little steamer Fleetwood was laid up in order to enable some slight repairs to be made to her rudder. The repairs were all completed last evening, and to-day she will be ready to resume trips.

REMAINS MOVED.—A short time ago the remains of the mother of Hon. Anson Burlingame, which were buried near Mohawk, were disinterred and sent to her former home in the east.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver a decision in the court this morning, on the motion for a new trial in the cases of the U. S. vs. Runnion, Dance and Savage.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE OPERA SEASON.—The steamer Oregon, due here this evening from San Francisco, will bring the Lester English opera company, who will open at New Market theatre next Monday evening for a short operatic season. Donizetti's opera, "La Fille du Regiment," will be presented on the opening night, Miss Louise Lester personating the character of Maria, the "child of the regiment." She will be efficiently supported by the members of the company and an excellent orchestra. The several characters, soldier, the sergeant, the marchioness, Tonio, [illegible] and the corporal will be entrusted to very competent hands. This opera was but indifferently rendered here some years ago, and as it is the purpose of the company to render it in first class style, with all the necessary adjuncts of costumes, orchestra and scenic effects, a real musical treat may be anticipated.

The sale of reserved seats commenced yesterday morning, and from present indications a very large [illegible] season is assured.

NEW ORDINANCES,

SOME INTRODUCED, AND SOME PASSED BY THE CITY COUNCIL.

Cheaper Punishment for Getting Drunk—The Street Cleaning Contract—Ordinance to prevent dirt and rubbish being scattered, etc.

For the past six months an ordinance has been in force which provides that the lowest fine for drunkenness, disorderly conduct and assault and battery shall be $10. The result is that police court drunks have not enough money to pay fines, keep the jail full and incur a large board bill for the city every month. To remedy this, Councilman Clerdes introduced the following ordinance, by which he thinks more money will be collected, and drunkenness will be decreased as the culprits dread work on the streets.

SECTION 1. That any person or persons who shall be found in any street, alley, house or place within the city in a state of drunkenness, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $5, nor more than $20, or imprisonment not less than 2 nor more than 10 days.

SEC. 2. The police judge in passing sentence on any person found guilty of a violation of section 1 of this ordinance shall specify whether or not such person shall work upon the streets of said city, provided, that a person shall not be sentenced to work upon the streets for the first, second and third offense.

SEC. 3. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

In past years contractors in street improvements have rendered streets in which their wagons run, uncomfortably dirty by reason of leaky wagon beds. A remedy for this is offered by the following, which was read twice and referred to the committee on streets and public property.

SEC. 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to haul or otherwise transport through any of the public streets, any earth, rubbish, street cleanings, stone, wood, or other substance, except the same be done in such a manner as will prevent such earth, etc., from being scattered upon the streets.

SEC. 2. All wagon beds hereafter used for carrying or transporting earth, etc., shall be so constructed as to prevent the scattering of the same upon the streets.

SEC. 3. Violations are punishable with a fine not less than $5, nor more than $20, or by imprisonment not less than two, nor more than ten days.

The ordinance relating to the width of tires which was passed will go into effect Jan. 1, 1882. It requires that the wheels of any truck, dray or other vehicle carrying four thousand pounds shall be at least four inches in width. Persons violating the ordinance will be subject to a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $20, or imprisonment not less than two, nor more than ten days.

The ordinance relating to cleaning, sweeping and sprinkling streets, which was passed, authorizes the committee on streets and public property to enter into such contract. It was, however, agreed that the committee should not act any further than to advertise for and receive proposals for the work, and refer the letting of contracts to the entire council.

The streets or portions of streets to be sprinkled, swept and cleaned are such as have been permanently improved with Belgian pavement, Nicholson, macadam which has been covered with rock screenings and rolled, or planked. The sweeping and cleaning to be done between 8 P. M. and 7 A. M. every day during May, June, July, August and September, the sprinkling from April to September inclusive. All the sidewalks and crosswalks in the city limits are to be kept free from mud and rubbish. The contract is to run for one year.

MILITARY AND PERSONAL.

[Vancouver Independent.]

Lieut. H. R. Lemly, of the 4th artillery has resigned, dating from July 1, 1881.

The venerable Chaplain Collins, now retired, is at Chatham, Mass., with his wife, for the summer.

Col. H. C. Hodges of the quartermaster's department, U. S. A., has gone to his new post in Arizona.

Gen. James D. Fry, Col. adjutant-general's department, U. S. A., just retired, was on duty at Fort Vancouver in 1876.

Major John P. Baker, paymaster U. S. A., and family, are at the garrison, guests of Lieut. J. W. Duncan, 21st infantry.

Sergeant Adam Schlosser, Co. D, 21st infantry, departed for Washington, D. C., on Sunday last, where he will enter the soldiers' home.

Lieut. S. C. Robertson, 1st cavalry, arrived at the post on Monday from Fort Walla Walla, en route to Europe with a year's leave of absence.

Capt. M. C. Wilkinson, U. S. A., now has 74 Indian boys and girls in the school at Forest Grove. Thus far the school has been a grand success.

Dr. J. W. Sparling, who is announced as the new register of the Vancouver land office, was formerly an assistant surgeon in the regular service.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, wife and daughter, left New York July 1st, en route to Vancouver barracks to take command of the department of the Columbia.

There is no truth in the rumor that Capt. Bendire, of the 1st cavalry, had been ordered to abandon his scientific expedition to go in pursuit of renegade Indians.

Maj. Lawrence S. Babbitt, ordnance department, U. S. A., accompanied by his venerable father, Gen. Edwin Babbitt, retired, has gone to West Point to spend a few weeks.

A deserter by the name of Fitzgerald, from company B, 1st cavalry, Fort Walla Walla, made a raise last week from Paymaster Canby on forged papers. At present he is among the missing, but would be welcomed back most heartily.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Dr. Hamblett, of Eugene, is in the city, the guest of her daughter Mrs. W. L. Chittenden.

Mrs. Ed. C. Hughes arrived in this city yesterday overland from Victoria. The lady has been absent about three weeks, leaving here on the steamer California, sailing north on the 29th of June. She had a very pleasant trip, spending a few days at Sitka and Wrangel and visiting the Takon mines.

Dr. Griswold, one of the pioneers of Portland, who with his wife has been visiting Portland for a number of weeks, have returned to their home in San Francisco. Mrs. Griswold is a daughter of Captain Frazer and a sister of Mrs. M. S. Burrell. The doctor is well remembered as one of the pioneer disciples of Taylor street M. E. Sunday school.

THE EVANGELIST

Return of Mr. Hallenbeck to Portland—He Conducts Two Interesting Meetings.

Wednesday evening Y. M. C. A. hall was crowded to the utmost capacity and many were unable to gain admission.

Mr. Hallenbeck conducted the services, which were very earnest and impressive.

He spoke of the work at Seattle, saying the last ten days had been the best of his life. No more could be found large enough to hold those who came to the meetings. One evening two hundred rose to their feet at once, asking for prayers for Christians.

[illegible] gave an account of the [illegible], the earliest known temperance society.

After earnest prayer, Mrs. Bird, in response to previous request, sang the "Ninety and Nine" in a clear, sweet voice, every word being distinctly heard in every part of the hall.

Mr. Hallenbeck then related his personal history, substantially as given at a previous meeting. Those who heard it before were no less interested in the recital [illegible] those who had not heard [illegible] thrilled with the intensity of his description [illegible] pathos of his portrayal. [illegible] eyes were [illegible] with tears when he spoke of the death of his mother, broken hearted and brought to an early death by his wayward life, with [illegible] hearing of his reformation.

He then asked the audience to join in silent prayer, when Mrs. Bird, Miss [illegible], Mr. [illegible] and Mr. Whitmore sang "The Silent Midnight Watch."

[illegible]

At the afternoon meeting yesterday [illegible] were in attendance, Mr. Hallenbeck leading, Mrs. Walker in charge of the music.

Mrs. Bird and Mrs. Goodsell sang several appropriate pieces in a very effective manner. Mr. Hallenbeck spoke from the words, [illegible] "Is there [illegible] hell," etc., reading several kindred passages.

We have no right to select certain texts and doubt their truth. We have been talking of heaven and love. It is well to remember that there is another side. The same Jesus who promised heaven to those who follow him, threatens hell to those who reject him. [illegible] there is a hell [illegible] heaven, which will make the procession [illegible] and we shall be condemned by these [illegible] seven falls. [illegible] whom he killed six thousand years [illegible] did the next day.

Jesus will not forget the [illegible] gave him in return of the kiss of Delilah. [illegible] who were swept away by the flood will remember the many warnings given by Noah.

The Sodomites will remember the warnings they received before their destruction.

In the next world there will be no salvation [illegible] to call on us to give our hearts to a better [illegible] loving Jesus to offer salvation for the taking.

Now is the accepted time. We have to [illegible] gone to every church, and among our friends [illegible] [illegible] their own [illegible]. No reason can be given if you are lost. You cannot say you did not know.

Mr. Hallenbeck leaves for San Francisco this morning, whence he will go to [illegible], having decided upon this course after consultation with Mr. Moody.

This will insure that all of the races will be equally good each day. The O. R. & N. Co's [illegible] will leave [illegible] for the park at frequent intervals [illegible] treat. [illegible] most fashionable [illegible] tendance [illegible] the directors of the association serve to the utmost [illegible] to exclude any persons or persons, so that no objectionable characters need attempt to gain admission to the grandstand. [illegible] the arrangements are such that the most fastidious can raise no sound objections and it is will do much to dispel the old [illegible] notions that [illegible] of this character carry with them any moral [illegible]. We hear of great numbers of people coming from all parts of the country and many from long distances. It really seems as if no effort or expense had been spared to secure the comfort of those who love to see a fairly contested race and who wish to encourage the association by their support.

DRY GOODS, CLOTHING,

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH IS OVER.

Business is quiet all over the city; but ISAAC BARMAN don't feel the effect of it.

THE REASONS ARE:

That he still continues to sell the immense stock of Clothing and Gent's Furnishing Goods, which he bought of Mr. A. MEYER at such very low figures, at prices that will astonish the closest buyer.

That his entire stock must be sold on or before the 1st day of September, in order to make room for his immense fall stock.

That he is offering Great Bargains, having reduced—

Suits from $15 00 to $10 00

Suits from $17 50 to $12 50

Suits from $20 00 to $15 00

Suits from $22 50 to $17 50

Suits from $25 00 to $20 00

That he is offering his entire stock of Furnishing Goods at 75 cents on the dollar.

That he has marked down his entire stock of Scarfs and Ties at 50 cents on the dollar.

That he is compelled to raise money, and he will not let up until he has it.

Make use of the opportunity before it is too late.

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING JULY 22, 1881.

OUT ON THE LAKE.

Wide open blue eyes, fringed with jetty lashes, a little slender nose, a mouth fit for Queen Titania—white brow, on which clustered rings of gold, in a fascination of disorder—a cheek exquisitely fair, with tint upon it of the sea shell—two little, soft, helpless hands—two little, slippered feet, and you have the picture before Roydon Howard's gaze, and the inventory successively dotted down by him in his mental diary.

"Awfully pretty," was the verdict rendered, "absolutely good for nothing else. Ah, if life were all summer such women would make perfect wives."

An audible sigh followed the latter thought of this most grave philosopher; a sigh so deep, so profound, that it started the girl from her reverie.

"A penny for your thoughts, major," she said, in a low, musical tone.

The voice suited her. It was like all else about Fay Richings—in perfect attune.

"You bid too low," answered the man; "and yet too high, since you ask upon a subject of whose reply you must be conscious. You forget that, spending the last hour in your society, my thoughts could not wander far."

"But you sigh. Must I hold myself responsible for the sigh, too?"

"I fear so—in remembering that my furlough is rapidly slipping away, and that within a month I must join my regiment on the plains, leaving my charming companion of this morning. Do you still bid a penny to inquire into a thing so deep as a sigh?"

The color deepened a little on the beautiful cheek.

"His charming companion of the morning." This was how he regarded her—this man, whose brave deeds had preceded him, until before meeting, had assigned him something akin to hero-worship.

A little sharp stab of pain shot through her heart but she smiled bravely.

"All that was scarcely worth a sigh from you," she said. "It is never those who go amid new scenes who feel most keenly the parting, but rather those who are left behind, amid the old familiar surroundings, and say, 'Yesterday he sat here,' or 'yesterday we heard his laugh,' or perchance find a glove that he has dropped, or cigar half smoked—to them it is something felt, something tangible."

"Do you think so? Does the sand sigh for the retreating wave when already one coming claims its welcome? I should be glad to feel that Miss Fay sometimes gave me a thought among the many new aspirants for the hour she has sometimes bestowed on me. A soldier's life has many charms, spite of his hardships, and there is some fascination, spite of its pain, in the long, solitary musings he holds sitting at the door of his tent, when, instead of the plain stretching before him, he views the mental panorama of his past. I'm afraid mine will confine itself to one figure. Can you guess whose, Miss Fay?"

There was an instant's pause—an instant when something stirred within Roydon Howard's heart, prompting the impulse to cry out: "Who but yours? Make imagination reality! Come with me! Share a soldier's life, and let our mutual love smooth the rough places!"

But scarcely was it born than he strangled it. He had no reason to suppose that this girl cared for him; but even so, at best it was but a passing fancy.

And in time of real danger where would she be? How would she fit him to ride forth to meet a foe? Either with hysterical weeping or a swoon. No, no! Here under the green trees, in a ballroom, at the head of a luxurious dinner table, such women were charming enough to turn a man's brain; but in moments of peril, when death, no longer clothed in the poet's rythm, stalked before them, bare and ungainly, it was little wonder that they fled shrieking from his grim presence.

Therefore the pause lasted an instant only, then Roydon answered his own question with a laugh.

"I declare I am almost growing sentimental. If in anybody's presence but yours, Miss Fay, I should apologize for so unwonted a mood. But you are wholly responsible for it, and it must be with you so old a story to inspire it that I will not waste the words. By the way there is my horse. I had no idea it was so late. Au revoir! Remember I have the first and last waltzes this evening."

The girl stood motionless, watching him as he strode away—watching him vault upon his horse, his tall, superb figure showing to such splendid advantage, watching horse and rider as they cantered out of sight, the latter turning first to give a farewell salute with his whip.

"So, in scarce a month will ride out of my life," she murmured to herself with white lips. "Oh, Roydon, is it that you are too proud to ask me to share the perils and privations of a soldier's life, or that it would give you no pleasure to have me share it?"

* * * * * *

"Will you go out on the lake with me this afternoon, Miss Fay?" asked Maj. Howard, a week later. "It looks a little squally, but we will keep close into shore, so as to run home if the clouds thicken."

"Of course I will come," assented Fay, "and as to the clouds, don't watch them too closely. I rather like storms."

"What a perfect picture she makes," thought Roydon, as he promptly, at the appointed time, assisted her into the sailboat he had named in her honor, the yachting dress of dark blue fitting closely to the exquisitely outlined figure, and on the golden braids nestled a coquettish sailor hat. Fifteen minutes later a splendid breeze carried them far out into the lake.

"The storm has concluded to postpone itself in our special favor," said Roydon, glancing up at the blue sky, "or perhaps they don't think soldiers should be too severely tried as sailors. Which is it, Miss Fay?"

"Do you appeal to me as the spirit of the storm cloud? If so, I shall call on it to avenge me."

He answered simply by a look, but it caused her eyes to droop.

She stretched the little white hand down to the water's edge, watching the current resist it as the boat sped onward.

"So," he mused, "am I resisting the voice of my heart; so must I resist to the end."

They spoke but little. They were alone and together—around them the water, above them the sky, and beneath them a grave. And both were young and in each heart the same voice was speaking; yet their lips were sealed. Thus an hour passed, when suddenly Roydon tacked.

"What are you doing?" cried Fay, in a tone of disappointment. "Surely we're not going home?"

"I wish to God we were already there," answered her companion with a blanched cheek, just as a little breath of wind, fresher than any they had felt, blew upon them. "Don't be frightened, Miss Fay," continued Roydon, assuringly, "it's one of these treacherous squalls. We're in for it, but I'll do the best I can."

"Can't I help you?"

The man glanced up amazed. She neither cried nor groaned. There was no tremor in her tone. His cheek was whiter than was hers.

"Pshaw! She did not realize the danger," he said, mentally. "Can you hold this?" handing her a rope as he spoke.

The next moment the squall struck them. The little yacht lay fully on its side, then righted itself.

Fay's lips were a little pale now, but no sound escaped them, only she had held so tightly to the rope, spite of his resistance, that it had already cut into the tender flesh.

The storm was now fully upon them. It was fierce as it was sudden. They were drenched with water. They could no longer see each other for the spray.

"Fay," cried Roydon, "you are frightened?"

"With you?" she answered. "No," and her tone was firmer than his own.

The next moment the boat, struck by a sharper blast than at first, went over. Both found themselves clinging to its sides.

"Fay, tell me," he said, "that you forgive me for this. Oh, child, must we die when life holds so much sweetness?"

"The storm won't last long. We may yet be saved," she answered in her sweet, young voice, "but, Roydon, if I slip, don't try to save me. It will only lose two lives, and mine is not worth as much as yours."

"My God! without you what would mine be?"

The words escaped him ere he realized their meaning.

"Live it, then, for my sake, dear," Fay replied, "and remember always, had I my choice, I would have chosen to have died thus with you than to have lived on without you. My love, good-bye."

The next instant the waters had caught her torn and bleeding hands, all cut by the rope, from their slight hold; but Maj. Howard had spoken words with no idle meaning when he had asked her what his life would be worth without her.

Quick as the current, in its hungry greed for its beautiful prey, he threw about her his protecting arm. Then, as though heaven smiled, the winds ceased as suddenly as they had risen and the sun burst forth from its hiding place, showing the rescue which was bearing down upon them.

"May I see you, if but for five minutes?" were the words scrawled on the card Fay held a few hours later in her bandaged hands, as she lay upon her couch very pale and exhausted, but with a breast full of gratitude for her wonderful escape, awaiting him who had penned the words.

How well she knew the quick, impatient step which heralded his coming. Her cheek flushed as he strode impetuously into the room.

"I could not sleep before seeing you," he said. "My brave girl, how little I knew you! I thought because you were beautiful there could be no courage in your soul; that because your hands were small and soft they could have no strength. Dear little hands," raising them tenderly in his own. "They helped to save our lives to-day. Fay, will you give them to me, darling? Will you be a soldier's wife and teach him, my own sweet love, some of the bravery that only such women as you can teach to men?"

A great light shone in the beautiful eyes upraised to his.

"I owe you my life," she whispered. "If a debt so rich will receive payment so poor, take it; Roydon, it is yours."

Wheat.

The near approach of harvest occasions a little freer disposition on the part of holders to meet the market, which has resulted in sales aggregating 20,000 to 25,000 centals in the week under review, ranging from $1 32½ to 1 35 as per quality. Exporters seem of the opinion that unless something happens to elevate the foreign market the range for the new crop of valley wheat will start at from $1 30 to 1 32½ per cental, and Walla Walla at from $1 22½ to 1 25. Should the reports of short crops in the northwestern states be confirmed—in which the shortage, as compared with last year, will be 80,000,000 bushels—it should, and absolutely will affect wheat values here. These reports of shortage appear to be reliable, but a few days will settle all doubts in the matter. Some samples of Eastern Oregon wheat received prove that the average there will be fully up to the choice quality of two years ago. Our valley wheat will also maintain its high reputation. With the surplus of 40,000 tons held over from last season, we hold to our estimate of 250,000 tons for export from the Columbia river next year.

Freights.

The tendency for the last week has been to higher rates, and we hear of eighty shillings having been paid for September cancelling. Offerings are very few. It is useless to shut our eyes to the fact that the amount of shipping directed this way is totally inadequate. The Merchants Exchange bulletin has some 37,000 tons listed for this port due up to the end of December, but we learn through another source that two ships on their list are bound for Tacoma and another to Wilmington, and it is extremely doubtful if any of them will enter here. Some possible relief may come to us from San Francisco as arrivals increase there, but a charter noted there to-day, the "Francis Carville," 1300 tons register, wooden, at 80s to Liverpool, Havre or Hamburg, denotes a present freight market fully as strong as our own. But such a state of affairs cannot long exist as there is a large over line fleet for San Francisco, which will in some measure relieve present necessities. It is presumed that the greater number of vessels en route to San Francisco are chartered at prices ranging from 55s 6d to 75s for the ensuing three months. It is thought by competent judges of the freight situation that there can be no hope of reasonable prices for freight for the remainder of this year. Any change in the situation for the better must be the result of future dispatching of vessels this way in vast numbers beyond the ordinary movement.

Grain Bags.

The demand for sacks as yet has not assumed much life, as there is a seeming reluctance to order until the last moment consequent of the late advance over ruling quotations. There is nothing to indicate lower values than those now ruling, as the San Francisco combination seems to have a firm grip on the stock on hand and to arrive. We quote Calcuttas at 10¼@10½c and Oaklands at 3½@3¾c in [illegible]

Salmon.

The "July run" commenced last week and is fully up to the hopes of cannerymen. All establishments are running on full time and several of them night and day. It will be impossible, of course, in the few remaining days of the season—it closes with the present month—to make up for the shortness of the early weeks of the season, but a great deal will be done towards it, and the aggregate product will be a full average. Prices are unchanged—$5 per case of four dozen one-pound cans on the river.

Home Produce Market.

Stocks of country flour on hand are still very large and are neglected, nothing but choice being wanted. Receipts of oats are larger and prices are much weaker. The new crop is about to be harvested and the yield promises to be one-fourth greater than last year. Prices here are nearly as high as at San Francisco, and shipments are very small. New hay is commencing to arrive in large quantities, which has affected the market for old hay. Sales are small as buyers are only meeting present wants. Mill feed is firm at quotations and wanted. There is no change in cured meats, which continue firm and scarce at the recent advance. Shoulders are very scarce and sell readily. Lard continues scarce. This market is depending almost entirely on California for supplies. Dried fruit continues dull due greatly to the large receipts of green fruit. Stocks of dried fruit now in the hands of commission merchants in this city are enormous and unsalable. No change in hides, which are firm at quotations. Choice dairy butter continues firm at quotations. Store lots are in liberal supply and sales are slow. Onions are plenty and cheap. The supply here is all from California. Receipts of eggs during the past week have been quite large, and stocks have accumulated so that prices have dropped. A further decline may be expected before long. Cheese continues steady at quotations. Choice factory cheese is in good demand. Irregular dairy lots are not wanted and will not bring full figures. Receipts of apples are very small and prices are high. There is no sale for timothy seed at any price. Owing to small receipts the price of chickens has advanced. High prices may be expected during harvest. It is a remarkable fact that whenever chickens go up eggs go down. Fresh salmon in half-barrels is scarce and wanted. Fresh salmon bellies are also scarce. Stocks of Oregon hops are about all cleaned up and quotations are merely nominal. Indications point to a very good crop this year. It will exceed last year's increase of acreage 10 per cent. The best care has been given to yards and most of them promise a heavy yield. Last year's crop was estimated at about 2500 bales, and the quality was better than usual. Notwithstanding conflicting statements of interested parties, the probabilities are that a great crop will be harvested throughout the United States, and from these premises growers can form their own conclusions. New potatoes of choice quality are scarce and sell readily at quotations.

Shipping News.

The Coloma has been chartered by a Chinese firm for a round trip to China. She will sail for Hongkong on the 22d of November with a general cargo and will return early next year with passengers and Chinese goods.

Captain J. C. Ainsworth, owner of the Coloma and Alden Besse, now in the Chinese trade, this afternoon bought the American ship Kate L. Davenport for $26,000, which is considered a remarkable bargain. She will probably take charter to carry grain for Europe.

MARK LANE REPORT.

Review of the English Grain Trade Last Week.

London, July 21.—The Mark Lane Express in its weekly review of the grain trade says: A week of tropical heat has brought on crops rapidly. The exceptional heat will doubtless prematurely ripen wheat. Barley certainly wants rain in southern and eastern midland counties. The oat crop may be regarded as lost. Deliveries of native wheat during the week have been insignificant, only 284 quarters having reached London during that period. Values are unchanged. Barley and oats totally unchanged. Foreign breadstuffs in ample supply and trade, despite weather, has been firm, but extremely quiet. Stocks depleted to an unusual degree.

MANHOOD RESTORED.

[illegible]

THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S Celebrated American WORM SPECIFIC OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull, the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears, an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist, DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated. Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS. Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros. of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.
